All parents want to raise their sons to be strong, responsible and determined. We want to see our boys as worthy individuals, so that in the future each of them will become a defender of the Fatherland, the head of a family, a good husband, father, brother. To do this, now we need to cultivate masculine character traits, give the right guidelines, and ourselves be worthy examples for our children.

The holiday on February 23 at the Ikhvis school turned out to be special. To congratulate the children, the school teachers held an exciting military-patriotic game “Defenders of the Fatherland”, where the boys participated in simulated military operations. Divided into teams, students of 1st, 2nd and 3rd grades set up a camp, set up and assembled a camping tent, and threw grenades. The guys even shot at a target! The test competition was completing an obstacle course.

“I wanted to tell schoolchildren about the holiday so that they would know what our defenders actually do,” physical education teacher Nikita Olegovich Nedogreenko shares with us during a break between competitions. “I think the guys learned a lot today. The girls also actively participated: they bandaged the wounded, built a fire, and actively cheered for their classmates.

Very soon a green spring will come, and then a blooming summer. Dear dads, be sure to take your children on a real hike! I am sure that after such competitions they themselves will teach you a lot. I saw with my own eyes how first-graders set up a tent and crawled on their bellies! And I also saw the joy on the faces of the guys, their unity, real team fighting spirit and the happiness of being, albeit still young, but such courageous and noble defenders of the Fatherland!
